

Introduction to 449 KSW

Note: Not checked by KF interpretation by KS of KF Brazil

There is a lot about emotions in this workshop, becoming aware of our Soul and gaining confidence to use its abilities. Mr. Keshe tested KS in our ability to feel the Soul Knowledge through sound, and even to take pictures with the Soul through our emotions. The main obstacle is our lack of confidence in using our Soul, and not putting our Soul as a priority in our life. He said, that we were in touch with the Soul when we were in the womb of the Mother, and could feel our parent's Souls, but when we came out into this world, we started paying more attention to physicality and lost the ability. Now we have to get it back, because with the new technology we need to be able to feel our different souls and work with them.

This also means we need to know the true feeling of our Soul, because that is what will allow us to transmute. So becoming aware of denied and buried emotions is very important for the upcoming work. He gave a very good example of this, when a lady with breast cancer on the left side, which means issues with mother or daughter. When she went into the Enhancement Unit (EU), she was able to work out undealt emotional issues, with the Souls of her mother and grandmother.

It seems understanding about the emotions kept coming up again and again in this workshop. There were the paintings that were done with Gans's and the colors will change according to the change in emotions of the people close to them. In China he communicated with a couple through the Soul, through feeling, and they understood each other. Mr. Keshe gives his love fully through the Soul, and if that is withdrawn, it is painful beyond pain. Psychosomatic illnesses are where the emotions manifest physicality through the Soul - this happens when we are unaware of our Soul and our true feelings, maybe they are too painful to allow ourselves to feel and deal with them.

When asked about man not being able to learn much and that he has to repeat the same thing over and over again, and to feel the pain of man's slow progress, he replied by telling a story of his college days and the emotions he felt when he climbed the 5 flights of stairs to his apartment, and he had to pass many different Iranian cooking smells along the way, where each brought an emotion he knew from growing up in Iran. The point seemed to be that man changes his emotion very easily, and seems not to be aware of those interaction or have much control over them. And that the emotions are so much a part of man's life, without him understanding his emotions, let alone being able to control them. Then the next thing he taught was, that you won't have this problem when you live in the Soul. The Soul is pure, clear, and transparent like the light of the Sun.

Another aspect of emotions are that many of the early childhood diseases start in the womb, where even the fetus feels the emotions of both parents, but that parents don't understand this. These emotional damages can follow the child throughout its lifetime, if not dealt with. He explained that it is more than enough for parents to have a single child if they give all the love and care it needs to reach maturity. And the difficulty of loving someone of a different language, when you don't understand the emotion of the language, maybe the true love is not getting expressed and the relationship falls apart.

This is the workshop of emotion and it needs time to ponder it over and over. In addition there is a very important teaching on field forces in the universe and in our body. That both vacuum and centrifuge conditions exists. This explains a lot of things our science has missed. For example, why the Earth is moving towards the Sun, and why our bones are in the center of the body, but in the skull they are to the outer side. This has to do with vacuum conditions inside other vacuums, and the centrifuge condition, or rotations. One last thing, sincere Souls will achieve transmutation.

Thank you for listening.
